Revenue Cycle Management

Revenue Cycle Management (RCM) is a sequence of activities that spans through scheduling, coding, billing and Insurance Claims Management. Within the process, manpower and technological resources are allocated to execute, monitor, and report the tasks as a repetitive cycle delivered by a well-skilled team using a sophisticated RCM software.

Scheduling	Coding	Charge Entry	Claims Submission	Posting Payments

ICD10-AM Clinical Coding

Medical coding is the transformation of medicalservices including diagnosis and procedures into a globally-recognised standard set of codes; such as ICD-10-AM. The medical code is the core language used in the EMR and RCM process. Using a standard coding system enables medical institutions to manage the RCM process beside other standard business functions effectively.
